

Comprehensive Developmental Screenings

The Center for Connection is now offering comprehensive developmental screenings for children ages 2-5!

Parents may have many concerns about their child's development and behavior. At this young age, there is so much variability in what is considered to be "normal" and it can be difficult to know if what they are seeing is still considered to be developmentally-appropriate.

Our comprehensive developmental screenings provide a holistic and research-informed approach to discuss and investigate parents' concerns, and to provide guidance on what to do next. Parents can expect to walk away with suggestions for activities and monitoring or recommendations for resources/services to explore. If the child is in a preschool or daycare program, school observations and recommendations are included as part of the screening process.

Developmental screenings will be completed by Cathy Schaefer, PhD, Licensed Clinical Psychologist. Within the early childhood population, Dr. Schaefer has extensive experience in assessment, intervention, and consultation. Her experiences include interdisciplinary assessment with speech language pathologists, occupational therapists, physical therapists and special education teachers, giving her a multi-faceted perspective on how she observes and treats concerns.
